Claims case '...far from complete'

Noted trial attorney builds Depreo defense

by JAKE JACOB

Attorney James E. Atchison of Mobile, Ala., has accepted the defense of Charles Edward Depreo, charged with the capital murder and arson in connection with the death of Mrs. Janice C. Ladner of Kiln, and of aggravated assault against her daughter, Joy Lynn, 6. He is being assisted by Private Investigator Randy Bridges also of his office.

The charges arose out of incidents occurring on the night of April 8, in which Mrs. Ladner was shot and her house on Moran Road set afire. Joy Lynn was also wounded but managed to escape from the scene.

Sheriff Sylvan Ladner later stated the girl had identified Depreo, a seaman in the Navy, who had returned to his ship in Portsmouth, Va. and was arrested at that location.

Ladner said the seaman had admitted to his involvement upon being turned over from Naval to local authorities for transporting back to Hancock County.

Following a hearing on Tuesday in Hancock to determine his having the availability of legal counsel, Depreo was remanded to Circuit Court for the appointing of an attorney.

Subsequent action by the suspect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eido Depreo excused the court appointed counsel in favor of Atchison, a known trial lawyer.

Contacted Friday, Atchison said he had talked with his client (Depreo) before agreeing to tackle the case. "Things are not always as they seem..."

"I do not know that his boy is guilty. I have not yet got any concrete facts and until the whole story is known we must presume he is innocent," the attorney said.

He said there is great need to solve the case and indeed it is one to which the public demands solution.

The defense attorney said, "Sometimes we get to following a course that gets set in motion and end up getting someone accused. But, I have a feeling about this case that something is not right."

"We are dealing with people, emotions, and an 18 year old."

"I am interested in pushing this case on through and I am also interested in observing the due process of law."

The defense attorney said that the state has considerable power and resource for the presentation of its case, resource which on occasion makes the sides unequal.

"Sometimes the system gets out of balance," Atchison claimed.

Atchison said he was puzzled by much of the existing evidence which does not seem to add up to a complete case.

"Things have to fit."

"Here I get the indication from everybody I talk to that this case is far from complete."

"Every law we have goes back some way to the Bible, particularly dwelling on the commandments."

"We have one of the 10 commandments that has been broken here, but justice is so important it is listed by God as one of the requirements for our lives," he concluded.

The senior partner in a six-man firm, Atchison has specialized in trial work, even while conducting a 'general' law practice.

Fleet Blessing date is May 27 at Bayou Caddy

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will host its annual Blessing of the Fleet 2 p.m., Saturday, May 27 at Bayou Caddy. The ceremony will be held in affiliation with Gulf Fishermen, Inc., an association of fishermen.

According to Chamber Special Events Chairman Robert Kane, the event will feature about 40 decorated boats, with units from the Mississippi Boat and Water Safety Commission and the Mississippi Marine Conservation Commission leading the procession.

Rev. Morgan Kavanaugh, pastor, Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, will perform the traditional blessing, which heralds the opening of the shrimp season.

After the boats are blessed, they will proceed to the Bayou Caddy entrance, where they will be reviewed by officials from Bay St. Louis, Waveland, and Hancock County. The officials will be aboard the cruiser Omeco, owned by John Housey, chairman of the board, Orleans Materials, New Orleans.

The Chamber's perpetual trophy, awarded last year to the "Marie G." owned by Louis "Fritz" Garcia, will also be presented, according to Kane. A panel of three judges will select first, second and third place winners and trophies will be presented.

Recent media reports have him connected with the defense of the Tomlin case, involving the murder of two teenagers on the Interstate. A defense stated to have resulted in a hung jury, and more latterly, the introduction of "eleventh hour" new evidence in favor of the defense; and the Larry Sullivan case in Pascagoula, where the jury found for the defense in an indictment involving the acceptance of bribes by a city councilman.

Investigator Bridges is to remain in the area as liaison and in the accumulation and assembly of defense material.

Heitzmann is C of C pick as King Neptune

By JERRY BENIGNO
Executive Secretary
Hancock Chamber of Commerce

George Heitzmann, former Tax Assessor-Collector for Hancock County for many years, has been nominated by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce for the title of King Neptune at the 1978 Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, to be held July 1-4 in Gulfport.

Heitzmann's name will go before a committee of the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, and if chosen, will reign as King Neptune over the weekend's festivities. The king will also be honored at a ball preceding the rodeo. A native of Bay St. Louis, Heitzmann graduated from St. Stanislaus in 1934. He furthered his education by completing special courses in accounting and several courses in real estate and appraising under the direction of the University of Mississippi.

His career in public relations began at the Hancock County Courthouse in 1935, and he remained employed there continuously until his retirement on December 31, 1977. He served as a deputy in the Collector's office, a deputy in the Chancery and Circuit Clerk's office, and was Chief Deputy Tax Assessor for 12 years preceding his election to that office in 1960. He was elected as the first Tax Assessor-Collector of Hancock County, when that office was combined in 1972, and

McLeod Park opens acres to campers

by JAKE JACOB

McLeod Park today announced its intent to construct overnight camping pads as the result of a new ruling permitting the action made this week by NASA.

Located on Texas Flat Road, immediately north of Stennis International Airport on Highway 603, the park was developed for the county by the Pearl River Basin Development District (PRBDD).

Developed from a former home site and private grounds, the park is inside the NASA-NSTL buffer zone and restrictions applying to development in that area, which forbid any form of human habitation, forced PRBDD to cut back on its initial, intended camping program.

The park, when all new facilities are in place, will be pitching to become a Class A recreational-camping site, with a complete vista of user services.

The Buffer Zone was created at the advent of NASA's settlement into the county to prevent hurt or damage to life or personal property due to acoustical vibration during the testing of Saturn V space vehicle first and second stage rocket boosters.

Ensuing programs expected at NASA would have seen further development to the north (east) of the present static firing test stands, further amplifying original need, as does the present, ongoing series of space shuttle main engine captive test firings and the requirements of the multi-million dollar US Army ammunition plant.

The notice of approval for the park's development was issued this week by NASA-NSTL manager Jerry Hlass, in a (MCLEOD PARK - PAGE 4)

Bay schools' compliance with handicapped education laws argued before ombudsman

Finding due in two weeks

by EDGAR PEREZ

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District was accused of providing only "patched together" special education services for a learning disabled child at a federal law compliance hearing here Friday.

The district has "...no ongoing and consistent program for the appropriate education" of the child in question, said Rims Barber of the Jackson office of Children's Defense Fund.

Barber represented Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Boyd of Bay St. Louis, parents of an eight-year-old boy currently enrolled in the Pineville School in Harrison County.

The hearing, in the school board meeting room at Bay High School, was called at the request of the Boyds under provisions of Public Law 94-142.

School Board Attorney Lucien Gex contended the Boyds' "problems are solved temporarily" with their son's enrollment in the Pineville School.

The attorney said the "primary reason for this hearing today is to determine if the school district is fully complying with Public Law 94-142." "I submit the board will be in compliance at the opening of school in August as called for by the law and should not be publicly harassed further on the matter," Gex stated. "He argued further the matter had degenerated into a publicity campaign—that's why we are really here today."

Barber maintained that included in the Boyds' purposes in asking for the hearing are attempts to insure the school district "takes every step necessary now to secure teachers, materials and proper registration of learning disabled classes with the State Department of Education" so that "appropriate educational services" are available by the August deadline.

"From the evidence shown here today, these things have not been done," Barber stated.

"The Boyds have a right to know now what the school district's plans are," Barber continued.

"We seek a decision mandating those actions," said the agent of Children's Defense Fund, an independent, national child advocacy group.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools Donald Caldwell testified he and Ms. Pat Dickenson, program development director for the school district, have recommended for the 1978-1979 school year establishment of two learning disabled classes, and hiring of an additional speech therapist and a special education supervisor. Under questioning by Barber, Caldwell admitted the district has not as yet purchased any equipment or materials for learning disabled classes.

Caldwell emphasized the district at this time has "no definite plans" for providing learning disabled services, "only recommendations."

He pointed out his recommendations are not considered plans until approved by the school board.

Applicants for learning disabled teaching positions at this time are being advised there is "a strong possibility" new classes will be established for the coming school year.

Throughout the current school year the Boyds have been pressing the school district administration and the school board to establish learning disabled classes.

The board and Superintendent J.D. McCulloch have maintained there are no provisions in the current budget for the classes and no classroom space available. The superintendent has warned the board an additional five classrooms in the system must be found by opening of school in August to satisfy requirements of the new federal law on education of the handicapped.

Federal funding of the new programs does not provide for the necessary classrooms, according to the superintendent.

St. Clare's Catholic Church in Waveland was the setting for the nuptial mass uniting Miss Colette Anne Breaux, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Earl Breaux, and Donald Doughdrill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Z.T. Doughdrill of New Orleans. Father Clair Marius Cazayoux S.J., cousin of Mrs. Breaux was the celebrant.

An old fashioned effect was produced by high neck and long sleeves of the gown which had tight bodice and low waistline set off by a heavy brocade lace trim. The skirt being gathered just below the waistline was full and had a long train. She wore a finger tip veil trimmed with pearls, and carried a bouquet of silk flowers.

For something old she wore a beautiful brooch which had been in her maternal grandfather's family for many generations. She carried a handkerchief that had been used by her mother, grandmother and great grandmother on their wedding days.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Edna Earle Bonanno, and Becky Breaux, Colette's sisters, and Mrs. Phil King, her first cousin. Junior bridesmaid was Cherie Bonanno. Yvette Bonanno was the flower girl.

Attendants were Z.T. Doughdrill, father of the groom, best man, W.D. Doughdrill uncle of the groom and Paul Anthony. Ushers were Gary Bonanno and William J. Breaux. Commentator was Mr. Albert Schayot.

Mildred Means was the organist, Louis Burghard, vocalist.

A reception was held at the home of the bride following the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip to Florida and Honduras the couple will reside in New Orleans.

MAKING PONDS SAFER

The placid, scenic farm pond in its peaceful setting continues to claim more lives of rural Mississippians, or city people visiting the country, than any other killer, according to a compilation of 1977 rural deaths by the safety department of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation.

A total of 14 Mississippians, mostly young people, drowned in farm ponds or rivers last year. Eight of them perished in farm ponds - mostly while swimming. Two 15-year-olds and a 49-year-old drowned in streams, one of them while trying to rescue another.

Nationally, about 7300 persons meet death annually through drownings, with more than half of those being persons who didn't intend to get into the water. They either fell in or were trying to respond to the troubles of others.

With warm weather just around the corner, all those persons planning outings on water or around bodies of water should consider several safety precautions which will prevent tragedy if a person accidentally falls into deep water, gets cramps while swimming or otherwise is partially disabled while in water.

Landowners should take the initiative in making their farm ponds as safe as possible, not only for themselves but for anyone who might get into a dangerous situation in that vicinity.

One of the best safety devices to have around a farm pond with water deeper than four or five feet deep is a simple and inexpensive "rescue station" on the bank near the deep water. This consists of a yellow painted post about four feet tall (above ground) with several fundamental rescue aids mounted on the post.

The rescue station should be painted yellow so it will be seen easily and to denote caution. It is good to paint "THINK, THEN ACT" in large red lettering down the length of the post on two or three sides exposed to view.

About a foot from the top of the post attach a metal shelf bracket, wooden arm, or large 60-penny spike as a rest for coiled rope and a small inner tube. The tube should be small, as a front tractor wheel tube, or wheelbarrow. The tube should be inflated and have "FOR EMERGENCY ONLY" painted on the exposed side in large white lettering. Or, if preferred, a one gallon plastic milk jug with a quarter of an inch of sand in the bottom, may be substituted for a tube.

A 40-foot length of quarter-inch manila or synthetic fiber rope should be tied to the tube, then coiled and hung from the spike on the post. The loose end of the rope should be tied to a short piece of wood to prevent the rope from slipping through the hands if thrown completely into the pond.

A fishing pole should be lightly secured to the upright post. Use either a 12 or 14-foot bamboo pole or a suitable sapling of about the same length. Since the pole is for the purpose of being extended to anyone struggling in the water near the bank, the tip should be wrapped with friction tape so it will not slip out of the victim's hands. Paint the pole white so it will attract attention and withstand weather better. It can be secured to the post between two average size finishing nails placed near the top of the post.

A large tin can, such as a two pound coffee can, should be cupped over the top post, and a nail should be tacked through the center top so the can will rotate. Mount a poster of safety tips, rescue procedures, emergency telephone numbers, etc. to the side of the can. Apply spar varnish to can and poster to protect them from weather deterioration.

Posters of this nature are available from the American Red Cross or the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation.

This project could be one of the simplest, yet most valuable, features of your farm property.

Making yourself heard, to be heard

by DEBORAH BOND
Library Staff
Pass Christian
Public Library

How many times have you heard or read a news item that sent your blood pressure soaring? You may have said "That's not right, what a shame, but what can I do about it? And then hollered at the dog and gone about your business.

"Spare your dog." The Bill of Rights insures you freedom of expression and your opinions DO count, which is the basis for the "Making Yourself Heard" project, 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 9 at the Pass Christian Public Library.

Dr. Peggy Frenshaw, Department of English; Dr. John Guise, Department of History, both Southern University, will address this subject, as will David Vincent of WLOX television station, and Billy McDonald, supervisor, Harrison County. The most important participants, however, will be local citizens who are concerned about state, local or national issues and want to "make themselves heard."

Emphasis will be on the written word (that letter you have always wanted to write to your congressman) and its impact on the issues of the day.

American politics is workshop theme

The second annual workshop on American Politics and Government will be held June 28-30 on the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park regional campus here.

The workshop will consist of lectures, discussion, documentary films and slides, teaching resource sessions and group discussions with elected and appointed political officials. Participating faculty will include professors from USM, visiting lecturers and possibly political activists and officials, each well versed in his or her field of interest.

Workshop co-directors are Dr. James Lea of the USM Department of Political Science, who has made several U.S. Human Rights Policy missions to Europe and Dr. Johnny Purvis of the USM Department of Curriculum and Instruction.

Three semester hours of undergraduate or graduate credit will be awarded upon successful completion of the workshop, a credit which may be used in either the elementary or secondary field. The Mississippi State Department of Education will accept the workshop credit for renewal of both elementary and secondary A and AA certificates.

Additional workshop information is available from Dr. Lea at USM Southern Station Box 428 or Dr. Purvis at USM, Southern Station Box 98, both in Hattiesburg, MS 39401.

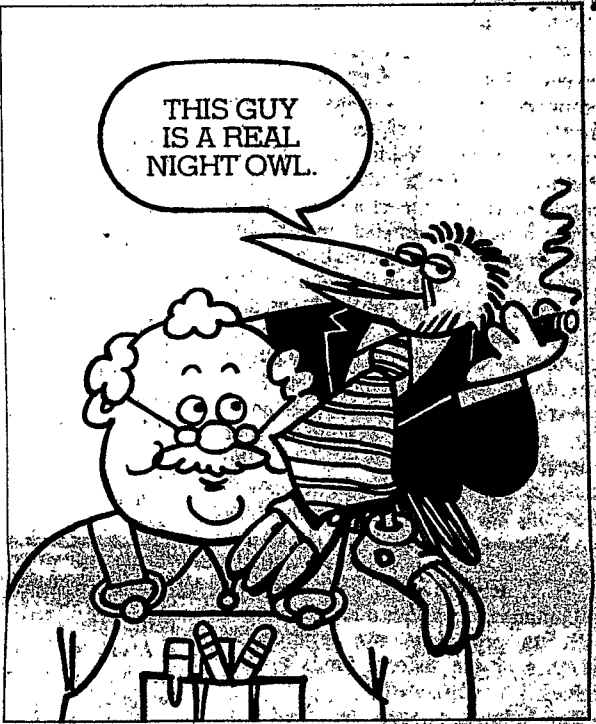

On-campus registration will be held at 8 a.m. June 28 in the parlor of Hardy Hall, USM-Gulf Park.

IF YOU THINK THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS FOR THE BIRDS, READ ON.

Let's face it. The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce could be doing better. Evidently, a good many business people in this area have grown indifferent toward the Chamber. And they take no part in its support.

"What does the Chamber do anyway?" It's often asked. Usually by people who expect no answer. There you have one of the Chamber's major problems - complacency. Complacency in the business community, among some people who have quit looking for answers to questions outside their own interests.

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, like any democratic forum, is no more or less effective than the people who participate in it and who are willing to lead efforts for the common good.

The Chamber of Commerce is a fair barometer of this area's attitude about itself: its sense of pride; its sense of destiny.

The fact is, Hancock County is at the threshold of an era of new opportunity but the effort demands the active and full support of the business community, of everyone who has a stake in the future of this area.

Now is the time to get involved in steering this area to its rightful place among the great areas on the Mississippi Gulf Coast and the state.

Because actually it's complacency that's for the birds. So join now.

Something we noted

We can appreciate the working togetherness of our State Senator Martin Smith and Representative J. P. Compretta in Jackson.

There are very few counties in the State, from what we can gather, that are fortunate enough to have such fine representation.

If we could have some of the same togetherness with other political bodies in Hancock County, much more could be accomplished, and we would all benefit. We know of some instances of this togetherness now, like the paving of Dunbar by Supervisor Oscar Peterson and the City of Bay St. Louis.

Some folks have already mentioned areas in which the cities of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County could get together. The big one of course would be reassessment.

If two of our representation can get together in Jackson and work for us, there is not good reason why three couldn't get together in Hancock County.

Together we, (Hancock County) can accomplish everything.

special education presided at the Friday hearing and promised to present his findings on the issue within 15 days.

Plue was named as an impartial hearing officer by Dr. Walter Moore, director of special education for the State Department of Education.

The university official termed the hearing an "ombudsman proceeding" and emphasized he was not conducting a "court of law."

Following the three-hour hearing, however, Plue noted findings of non-compliance against a school district carry the potential of loss of monies provided under Public Law 94-142, whether the funds were provided directly to the district from the federal government or channeled through the State Department of Education.

His findings based on the hearing are subject to review by the State Department of Education as well as by an appropriate court if appealed by either parents or local school district, Plue stated at the opening of the session.

In addition, Plue explained that federal funds are not involved in the question of compliance with provisions of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Law of 1973, a further legal basis for hearings of the type held here Friday.

Provisions of Section 504 are based on human rights issues and compliance with its provisions are enforceable whether or not federal funds are involved," he explained.

The educator said he feels enforcement of Section 504 provisions will carry full force of the federal government, "just as the laws concerning race and sex do."

Plue noted the hearing in Bay St. Louis Friday is among the first of its kind, with only "six or seven previously held in Mississippi."

The law has been in effect for the past 12 months, he added.

"On the other hand, there have been 36 hearings in Tennessee already under provisions of Public Law 94-142," Plue pointed out.

Earlier in the hearing, Barber cited one of the cases in Mississippi this year, the "Mattie T." case in Panola County, and Plue said he feels the case has precedent-setting potential.

In the Mattie T. case, the court ordered immediate placement of two children in question by their local school district.

The court held the school district must prove its inability to comply immediately, and could only rely on the August, 1978 date as an absolute final deadline.

Plue said most of the cases before hearings in Mississippi have involved the issue of "appropriate placement" or establishment of the special classrooms in the "least restrictive environment" as provided in the law. A hearing might also be called to study a question of the adequacy of evaluation of the child designated for special education by the school districts, Plue noted.

Plue received but failed to act on a request from Gex that the hearing be declared moot on the basis the Boys are satisfied with the services their child is receiving at Pineville for the remainder of the school year.

Also in attendance at Friday's hearing were Mrs. Jean Townsend, Waveland member of the school board, and Ms. Janell Ladner Griffin, North Bay elementary teacher who provided 30 minutes per day of learning disability training for the Boyd child when was at that school.

Ms. Griffin is a certified learning disability teacher, but is not assigned to a regular class of that type at the school.

victims of their acts. Court director Charles Carter said Friday that one of the boys involved in 10 or 12 break-ins operated under the influence of an adult.

"This adult is now out on bond," Carter said.

He said police investigations had recovered about $5000 worth of the stolen property from a location in New Orleans.

Disposition on three more cases is to be made May 24 on completion of counselors having made their field reports.

Here, two of the boys from the Kiln area pled guilty to 13 counts of malicious mischief, their disposition to be given May 20. The third juvenile charged in the case will have a disposition handed down May 10.

Hunting for three months was forbidden to two youths who were adjudicated guilty of violating Game and Fish laws, in addition to which they were placed on probation.

A total of 35 cases were docketed for the month of April.

To lessen individual case load from the present 100-115 per counselor to 50-60 apiece, and increase time spent by counselors in services to individual youths, Jerry Sirbaugh, was engaged as a youth services counselor.

A graduate of James Madison University, Harrisonburg, Va., he is to be paid by the Mississippi Department of Youth Services, which pays the salaries of counselors and authorized the hiring due to the dramatic increase in caseload.

Sirbaugh will share the caseload with present counselor Mrs. Susan Malove and also be responsible for developing intake procedures for the court and volunteer program to be initiated in the near future.

TODAY'S YOUR BIRTHDAY, Shannon. You're four-years-old. And there's many a forty-year-old who wishes he had your kind of courage. It's a rare person who loses an eye because of a malignant tumor and continues to laugh and play. And you're mighty brave the way you handle those devastating drugs whose side effects leave you nervous and tense, causing traumatic changes in your personality and which will eventually cause you to lose your hair. Hopefully the drugs will make you well and help you rid your body of the cancer the doctors at St. Jude's in Memphis couldn't cut out. You're a strong young man to carry knowledge of all these things cheerfully, and that's probably because your grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Bermond of Bay St. Louis, and the other members of your family treat you like a man to help you develop the strength you need. So again, Happy Birthday, Shannon, with love.

remained in this capacity until his retirement in December, 1977.

During his many years at the courthouse, he held secondary employment during and after the war years. He was appointed and served as Chief Clerk for the Selective Service System for Hancock and Harrison Counties; was appointed and served as Housing Director for the City of Bay St. Louis in 1952 and served until 1960; was actively engaged in Civil Defense work and is still a member.

Heitzmann received special commendation from President Harry Truman in recognition for his work with the Selective Service System. He has been active in the Knights of Columbus for many years, and still holds membership in the Third and Fourth Degrees of the Order. He has traveled extensively for over 22 years in the promotion of Columbianism in the states of Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

Other citations received by Heitzmann are from the Older American Area-wide Model Program, the International Association of Assessors and Appraisers, and the Mississippi Assessor's and Collector's for over 15 years continuous service on the Executive Board. He also served as president and vice president of this state organization.

Heitzmann holds a certificate of a Certified Review Appraiser (CRA), and was a colonel on the staff of three governors, including Governor Cliff Finch.

Special citations were awarded Heitzmann by the cities of Bay St. Louis, and Waveland, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the Hancock County School Board, for services and contributions to local government for over 42 years.

He has also received special recognition from the Chamber of Commerce, U.S. Congressman Trent Lott, U.S. Senators James Eastland and John Stennis and a special note of appreciation from Governor Cliff Finch.

Heitzmann is married to the former Margaret Dubuison, and they have two sons and one daughter, and eight grandchildren, is a member of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church and the OLG Usher Society, and served for many years on the OLG Parish Council.

The Stennis report

TENN-TOM

While expressing satisfaction with progress being made on construction of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, Senator John C. Stennis today said, "I am disturbed that the budget for fiscal year 1979 contemplates lesser funding than was appropriated last year." Last year the Congress appropriated $172 million for the project while the President requested $142.75 million for the coming fiscal year.

Stennis listed several negative aspects of the decrease in funding. He said, "This of course stretches out the completion. That delay would be very expensive...because construction would not proceed at the most efficient rate. Also the delays mean that the full benefits of the project are foregone for that period, which would be very costly."

The Mississippi Senator recalled the events of last year when the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway was placed on the President's so-called 'hit-list' of projects which he wanted cancelled. Stennis pointed out that after careful examination and a public hearing, "the President agreed that the project has full approval and shall proceed as scheduled." Stennis continued, "The appropriation for the current fiscal year was based on that premise, and we have seen splendid progress this year, with many bids being received that are less than the cost estimates."

Stennis challenged the rationale that funding for the Tennessee-Tombigbee must be slowed in order for those federal dollars to be used to create jobs and stimulate the economy. "I submit," Stennis said, "that there are few better ways to accomplish this than by putting the money into project construction in the improvement of water resources."

He continued, "These flood control and navigation projects are a capital investment for the future. They pay their way.... They are not make-work projects, because when they are finished they will be there to benefit generations to come. To invest in assets of this kind is money in the bank, so to speak, in a long-term economic sense, and does not have the inflationary aspects of very large temporary government jobs programs." Stennis said the projects benefit the regions where they are located both during construction and for years thereafter.

APPALACHIAN STORY

Senator John C. Stennis today called the programs of the Appalachian Regional Commission "an outstanding example of cooperation between Federal, state and local governments." Referring to the numerous projects undertaken by the Commission, Stennis said, "The projects that have been accomplished...would have been impossible for the local people to obtain."

Stennis continued, "The difference was made by the money the Commission made available. This was the seed money - literally the seeds that made the projects grow - when combined with other Federal, state and local funds."

As a former chairman of the Senate Public Works Appropriations Subcommittee, Stennis said, "I have been particularly impressed with the success of the vocational schools, and I have visited many of them. They are able to tailor the training of students to fit into the needs of the community, to fill jobs that are already there or are know to be coming as a result of industrial development and business growth. And of course that industrial growth would not have taken place had not the community been able to meet projected requirements for special skills."

Although Mississippi was not originally a part of the Commission's area, Stennis sponsored an amendment in 1967 which provided for inclusion of 20 northeast Mississippi counties.

Washington report

By Trent Lott

GETTING EDUCATION OUT OF H.E.W. BY CONGRESSMAN TRENT LOTT

When Congress established the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) at former President Eisenhower's direction in 1953, the move was considered a major reform. The Federal Security Agency was abolished and its functions were incorporated into a central body.

Over the past quarter century, as government has grown to a half-trillion dollar endeavor, HEW has become the textbook definition of bureaucracy. The department's thousands of employees, operating on a $180 billion budget, are involved in projects as diverse as tobacco regulation in North Carolina to civil rights in California.

In the process, the best interests of education in this country have become intermingled with the sometimes conflicting interests of health and welfare. The connection has always escaped me.

The President now has come forward with a plan for creation of a separate, Cabinet-level Department of Education, operating on a $17.5 billion budget with a staff of more than 23,000 persons, to oversee some 164 educational programs that are scattered to the winds of government. This action would give education its own voice in the Cabinet, free from the entanglements of health and welfare.

About three-fourths of the programs to be included in the new department would be drawn from HEW.

They would include the Education Division ($12.9 billion), Head Start ($680 million), supervision of special institutions ($179 million), Office of Civil Rights education functions ($55 million) and some student nursing and physician training loans ($30 million).

But other federal departments and agencies would also give up some of their education programs for the sake of centralization. For example, the child nutrition program of the Agriculture Department ($2.9 billion), the Bureau of Indian Affairs schools ($271 million), the Defense Department's Overseas schools ($35 million), and the college housing program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development ($111 million) would also be transferred to the new agency.

Significantly, the President has proposed leaving the $2.6 billion veterans' educational programs in the Veterans Administration, where authorities are best equipped to handle the specialized needs of this group. The job training program of the Labor Department would also remain untouched, as would several other programs.

The President's proposals represent a start toward strengthening education. By separating education from health and welfare, perhaps more attention could be given to the acute needs of education.

letter to both the park commission and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. Both groups expressed elation over the decision.

"On behalf of the board I want to thank both Jerry Hlass and NASA. This action will allow McLeod to be advanced to handle its full potential and will most certainly become an added boost to the county in terms of tourist dollars through bringing the people into this area to see what it has to offer."

"I would also like to thank Hlass for the cooperative attitude he and his agency have displayed in other responsible ways," Alt, on A. Dolph Kellar, president, Hancock County Board of Supervisors said.

Hlass, in making the agreement, expressed a note of caution concerning activities in the balance of the buffer zone.

He said, "There will be an extra burden levied on us here at NSTL in terms of managing the buffer zone as a result of this action, but we are willing to accept that because I believe the net results are in our mutual interests."

Hlass warned however that vigilance will be maintained by NASA security forces over the balance of the buffer zone to prevent any duplication of the park's camping exception elsewhere. In making this clear Hlass said, "The NASA-NSTL buffer zone is essential to present and future operations."

"There will be continued enforcement of the buffer zone restrictions, with this single exception, and those previously granted for truck weighing stations and the soon-to-be constructed hospitality station at the intersection of I-10 and Highway 607.

This enforcement includes the periodic patrols by the Corps of Engineers, NASA's land management agent for the buffer zone and by the NSTL security patrols, both by vehicle and by air.

The government only has a restrictive easement which prohibits the occupancy of habitable structures or buildings in the buffer zone. The vast majority of land itself is owned by private individuals and timber companies.

Campers who have been illegally utilizing the buffer zone are asked to now utilize McLeod Park.

Present park improvements include picnic tables, boat launching ramps, a pavilion, comfort stations, and a nature trail.

A ranger station is to be constructed which will house the rangers soon to be on duty 24 hours per day.

To commence with primitive camping only, the latest plan was worked out by the Hancock County Park Commission, which operates the park under the auspices of the board of supervisors. Those on the commission are: A.C. Jones, chairman; Mary G. Caillier, secretary-treasurer; Perry Gibson, Hildon Shaw, and Ellis Bergeron, Jr.

WHEN TO SEE THE DOCTOR

All of us are now and then faced with a "quick decision: should we, or shouldn't we see the doctor?"

The Mississippi State Medical Association lists several points for consideration as a general guide to help you decide whether medical aid should be sought at one -

When your complaint or symptoms are too severe to be endured, such as abdominal pain common to a gall bladder attack or appendicitis or kidney colic, or sudden chest pains. Immediate relief of pain is the purpose of getting the patient to the doctor without delay.

When an apparently minor symptom persists for more than a few days or a week, and does not appear to be due to some easily identified cause. A nose bleed from a sharp blow is one thing; a nose that bleeds constantly, or frequently for no apparent reason, is quite a different matter.

When the symptom returns repeatedly for no readily apparent cause. Digestive disturbances due to overindulgence are one thing; constant digestive distress despite great care and moderation in eating is another.

When in doubt, it is safer to call the doctor than to take a chance.

Many accidents around the home or yard cause bruises and scratches and minor sprains that can be successfully treated at home. But some accidents require fast medical attention.

If the accident victim is unconscious, get help fast. Also when bleeding is severe or cannot be controlled; when the victim is groggy or confused; when there are signs of shock, such as pale, cold skin, sweating and weak pulse.

Breathlessness or intensive thirst after the accident require medical attention. If there is a possible broken bone, seek help. Also, for severe pain, signing of poisoning, serious burns, persistent vomiting, blurred visions.

THE HAWKS OF CHELNEY

BY ADRIENNE JONES
DRAWINGS BY STEPHEN GAMMELL
Ages 12 up $7.95
Published April 1978

Allen was what he was, the slim, sinewy child born late in life to the dour Old Man and his wife, who lived on the outskirts of Chelney. The Old Woman had a first thought Siri a blessing, but the boy grew up wild, stupid, and clumsy aboard the boat and forever flitting about the surrounding cliffs and estuaries like a bird. The fishermen mocked him and finally excluded him from their work. Free, then, to roam the high cliffs, Siri was the first to spot the pair of ospreys, the only to alight in the area for years. That summer his sharp eyes grew even keener tracing their airy paths, his voice became raucous imitating their cries, and in his dreams he saw himself flying with them. But when the fishing fleet of Chelney began to return empty, the superstitious villagers recalled the ancient lore: "Where the sea hawk hunts, the fisherman hungers." Urged by their leader, the bully Sunderman, they determined to destroy the birds, and Siri, who refused to lead them to his beloved hawks, had to flee their wrath. Refused on the cliffs with the ospreys, who eventually even tolerated his nesting with them at night, Siri began to feel more bird than human - until the day he found, lying half dead on the shore, a shipwrecked girl who had been buffeted by human cruelty of another sort. Between the two young people, in the cave shelter Siri made for their home, a slow effortless love grew. But in time the girl's longing for other human companionship endangered their freedom. And on a day of cloud and mist, the villagers, goaded by the vengeful Sunderman, force Siri and his companion to a strange and awesome escape.

Illustrated with Stephen Gammell's powerful half-tone drawings, Adrienne Jones' haunting fantasy, with its underlying mythical resonance, explores the deep currents of love that bind us to one another to the natural world. Adrienne Jones, the author of ten novels and numerous short stories, based much of the description in this novel on her own mountaineering and bird-watching experiences. She lives in Laguna Beach, California. Stephen Gammell, a native of Minneapolis, has illustrated many children's books.

Extension Home Economist Notes

By Norine Barnes

Hancock County

Chicken is an all American favorite. Broiler-fryers rate high with consumers. Fryers outsell all other poultry meats. These tender, ready to cook chickens weigh from 3.50 to 3.75 pounds and are 7 to 9 weeks old. They're specially bred, fed and pampered to produce high quality birds that come to you in convenient forms at reasonable prices. Their balanced rations are enriched with vitamins and minerals, tailored to produce today's fryer. It's a fascinating story of scientific progress.

Your supermarket bird is ready to cook. This means that the chicken has been cleaned inside and out, is free of pinfeathers, and eviscerated—the head, feet and inedible organs have been removed before the bird was weighed for pricing.

Cut-up chicken and chicken parts offer maximum convenience for little additional cost. For example, a cut-up 3 pound chicken may cost an average 12 cents more than a 3 pound whole bird.

Family preferences differ. If your family prefers white meat, it may be more economical for you to buy chicken breasts. Although you pay more per pound for the parts, you save money with less waste.

You will need approximately three-fourths pound chicken for a serving. A 3 pound bird yields 4 servings. A pound bird yields 2 servings.

Chicken may come to you packaged in over thirty different ways. There's a pack for every cooking purpose and family preference. Here are some of the choices you have when chicken is on your grocery list:

Whole chicken is often packed with heart, liver, gizzard (giblets) inside. The meat yield for a whole broiler-fryer is 51.2 percent of the bird.

Package chicken pieces include drumstick, thighs, breasts and wings. One serving is ½ breast, or a thigh and drumstick, or a combination of the smaller pieces. Chicken halves come packed in 1½ to 2½ pound weights. Allow one chicken half per serving.

Chicken quarters usually come in 2½ pound packages. Allow one quarter per person.

Drumsticks are great finger foods. They weigh 4 to 5 ounces each allow two per serving.

Thighs are delicious dark meat in convenient form. Use "as is" or bone them for a real treat. They average four ounces each.

Breasts have the greatest amount of meat of all the chicken pieces. They're good value for the money and so low in calories. A 3 ounce portion has only 185 calories or 115 without the skin. Allow ½ breast per serving. Breasts range from 12 to 15 ounces each.

Wings are excellent party nibblers. Two wings usually make one serving. Each wing is approximately 2 ounces.

Chicken livers are really delicious and reasonable. Allow ¼ pound per serving.

After selecting the chicken of your choice, take it home immediately, loosen the market wrapping and store in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Plan to use it within two days or rewrap and store in the freezer.

CHICKEN IN A JACKET

2½ to 3 lb. broiler-fryer chicken
Monosodium glutamate around chicken. Sprinkle all with monosodium glutamate, salt and pepper. Bring ends of foil together over chicken; make double fold. Make fold at each end. Place in shallow roasting pan. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees) 1 hour. Open foil and fold back; roast 20 minutes longer or until leg bone turns easily. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Make 4 servings.

County Agent's Notes

SBA TO CHANGE DISASTER LOAN OFFICE SCHEDULE

The Small Business Administration has announced a change in office hours for its Biloxi and Hattiesburg disaster loan offices.

Effective May 8, 1978, the office will be open from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The Biloxi office is in the Gulf National Life Insurance Building, Highway 90. The Hattiesburg office is in Room 307 of the Federal Building, Main Street.

Farmers and ranchers who suffered crop losses during the 1977 drought may apply for low interest loans at either office.

CONTROL BROADLEAF WEEDS

You need to control broadleaf weeds in pastures before they rob your crops of much-needed moisture and fertilizer. You can kill these pests easier by spraying them early in the season before they reach a height of two inches.

The recommended herbicides and rates are one pound of 2,4-D or one to two pints of 2,4-D plus Banvel D mixtures per acre. If you have legumes in your pastures, do not spray until the annual legumes have gone to seed. If white clover is present, use one-half pound of 2,4-D per acre. Do not use Banvel on perennial legumes and clovers because it will kill them.

GARDENING

Cultivate your garden as often as necessary to keep weeds under control. Cultivation will kill small weeds that can steal water and nutrients from your garden crops if allowed to grow. Proper cultivation will also loosen the soil and let more moisture in. If a crust forms on the soil, you should break it with shallow cultivation. Deep cultivation can injure crop roots and bring fresh seed to the surface.

WATER YOUR TRANSPLANTS

If you transplanted trees to your lawn or fruit orchard last winter, provide them with plenty of water during hot, dry weather this summer. Lack of water is the biggest cause of tree deaths during the first growing season after transplanting.

Apply five gallons of water each week around the base of newly planted trees during the summer will usually give them enough moisture. This easy, inexpensive step can make the difference between a healthy, vigorous tree and a wilted eyesore.

EXTERNAL HOG PARASITES

External parasites can cause a loss of profits in a hog production operation, and hog lice are among the most common of these pests. These small, bluish-gray blood-sucking insects can kill hogs if not controlled.

You should treat your hogs with a recommended insecticide if you find lice around ears and the underside of legs. You should also dust or spray bedding, hog houses and pens at the same time to avoid re-infestation. Contact your county Extension agent for recommended insecticides for controlling lice.

Feed grain, wheat sign-up extended

Pearl River and Hancock County farmers wishing to participate in the cotton, feed grain and-or wheat programs will have an additional two weeks to sign up, Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASCS) has announced.

Gennin said Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland was extending the sign-up period from May 1 through May 15 because of changes announced March 29 in the programs. On that date Secretary Bergland authorized additional diversion of cropland under the cotton and feed grain programs and permitted wheat program participants to graze out their wheat or harvest hay on a percentage of their planted acreage.

BROILERS

WEEK ENDING: APRIL 22, 1978
RELEASED: APRIL 26, 1978

BROILER-TYPE
Hatcheries in the State set 6,317,000 eggs for broiler chicks during the week ending April 22, three percent below the previous week but six percent above the 5,939,000 set the corresponding week a year ago.

There were 5,968,000 broiler chicks placed on Mississippi farms during the week ending April 22, one percent above the previous week and seven percent above the 5,594,000 placed the corresponding week a year ago.

Cumulative placements for 1978 are 88,235,000 broiler chicks - six percent above a year earlier.

CHICKENS & EGGS

MARCH 1978

RELEASED: APRIL 24, 1978

Mississippi's 7,142,000 layers produced 151 million eggs in March 1978, according to the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is one million below the 152 million produced in March 1977.

Broiler-type chicks hatched in Mississippi during March totaled 22,991,000 - up four percent from the March 1977 hatch. The hatch of egg-type chicks was 1,044,000.

There were 20,063,000 young chickens slaughtered under Federal Inspection during February 1978 in Mississippi. This is seven percent more than the 18,816,000 inspected during February 1977 in Mississippi. This is seven percent more than the 18,816,000 inspected during February 1977. Post Mortem condemnations were 1.63 percent, as compared to 1.49 in February 1977.

Wheat grazing, hay program is explained

The Secretary of Agriculture recently announced a special wheat grazing and hay program to help boost farm income and reduce the wheat harvest. The program guarantees farmers who participate in the wheat program a payment for grazing or haying part or all of their 1978 wheat acreage planted for harvest. The guaranteed payment will be 50 cents per bushel, times the acreage designated for grazing or haying, times the farm yield. Victor A. Senechal, Assistant Deputy Administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), said. Farmers will receive an advance payment equal to half of his total payment when he signs up for the program.

The maximum acreage that a farmer can designate for grazing or haying under the program is the larger of 50 acres or 40 percent of the wheat, feed grains and cotton intended for harvest. The ASCS official pointed out that the acreage must be planted to wheat. The producer will get the hay or pasture, plus the guaranteed payment, Mr. Senechal said. If the deficiency payment for wheat is more than 50 cents, the farmer will be paid no less than the deficiency payment. "In other words, his payment would be the higher of the deficiency payment, rate or the 50 cents per bushel." To participate in the special grazing or haying program, farmers must sign up and make the required set-aside of the wheat acreage to be harvested.

Sign up at the local ASCS office through Monday, May 1.

Feed grain set-aside program pays farmers

Pearl River and Hancock County farmers who participate in the 1978 feed grain set-aside program can receive payments for voluntarily diverting additional acreage, Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Office, reported. The regular ten percent feed grain set-aside provisions remain unchanged. "The additional diverted acreage must equal 10 percent of the 1978 acreage of each crop of corn, grain sorghum and barley planted for harvest," Mr. Gennin said. Also the 1978 acreage of each crop may not exceed the 1977 acreage of that crop.

The payment for corn will be $2.20 per bushel times the farm yield established for corn, times the actual corn acreage planted for harvest. The diversion payment for barley and grain sorghum will be $1.20 per bushel, applying the same farm yield and planted acreage computations. Mr. Gennin said farmers will receive one-half the payment when they sign up. "The 1978 acreage of NCA crops, required set-aside, voluntary diversion, and any wheat, grazing and hay acreage for payment cannot exceed the farm's normal crop acreage," Mr. Gennin said. For more information on voluntary diversion of any or all of the feed grain crops, contact the local ASCS office (Pearl River - Hancock County ASCS Office, Poplarville or telephone No. 601-785-4932).

Scooter mouse to squeek at

Pass library

"Scooter" Mouse, mascot and chief assistant of the Children's Department of the McComb Public Library, is coming to Harrison County to promote the libraries' Summer Reading Clubs.

Scooter, accompanied by Children's Librarian Mattie Rials ("Miss Mattie" to Scooter), will do a one-mouse show, "Around the World with Scooter Mouse," 4 p.m., Friday, May 5th in the Pass Christian Library. Scooter's and Miss Mattie's programs include puppets and songs to the tune of an auto-harp.

It will be the first time that the literary mouse, whose fame is spreading around Mississippi, has ever performed on the Gulf Coast. According to Biloxi Librarian Jackie Sue Broom, negotiations may soon be underway for an appearance at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum.

Scooter is the latest in a long line of mice-entertainers, going back to old English nursery rhymes such as "Hickory, Dickory Dock" and "Three Blind Mice", and extending to Walt Disney's famous Mickey. Just when Scooter set mousekeeping in McComb, and how he got into the library business will doubtless be revealed when Scooter is interviewed on the Coast.
